

Amendments to the Specification

Specification page 5, lines 20-24, please replace the paragraph with the following replacement paragraph:

And a method of the present invention is characterized by exchanging data with a database management database (i.e., a database that stores the page/text records) and a contents language database (i.e., a database that stores the dictionary and grammar rules necessary to effect a translation) through said database access management process (i.e., the interchange of information between the aforementioned database management database and the contents language database), performing requests including reference, addition, update and deletion with respect to a multilingual processing database and the outside, and obtaining the respective results of these requests through said database access management process.